THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS

VOLUME XIV

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA. FRIDAY EVENING JULY 25, 1919

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS
ON LEAGUE PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, July 25—While Senate administration leaders contend that the league situation is not materially changed by the advent of the Taft letters, senators opposed to the ratification of the league only with reservations say that the Taft letters show convincing and clearly the absolute need of reservations. Administration Leader Hitchcock today announced that the administration program is unchanged and that it is for the "unqualified endorsement" of the pact as signed by the peace delegates. The situation is tense today over the failure of the president to make any reply to three senate resolutions asking for information in regard to the treaty.

President Wilson plans to present to the Senate the Anglo-French-American defense treaty immediately after he had finished his speaking tour. The President is now preparing a speech to be delivered on the occasion of the presentation of the pact. This announcement was made at the White House today.

It is doubtless the outgrowth of severe criticism of the president in the Senate yesterday when it was shown that the supplemental treaty should have been presented along with the peace treaty. It has already been presented to the French Chamber of Deputies in accordance with the understanding had at Paris.

ASK MILLION AND A HALF TO FIGHT FLU

WASHINGTON, July 25—Congress is asked to appropriate $1,500,000 to fight Spanish influenza. Congressman Fess, of Ohio, in introducing the measure declared that medical men believe there was a great probability of return of the epidemic. According to figures compiled by the American Medical Association there were 500,000 deaths and an economic loss of over four billion dollars caused by the recent epidemic. Fess declared the time is ripe for extensive research and believes that the work should be undertaken by the Public Health Department.

COUNTRY CICLER OFF AGAIN

NEW YORK, July 25—The Martin Bombing Plane which is attempting to fly around the United States left Hazelhurst Field early today for Augusta, Maine.

AUGUSTA, MAINE, July 25—Lt. Col. R. F. Hartz and crew of four landed here at 1:05 P. M. today completing the second leg of their trip without unusual event. They left Minneapolis at 8:25 A. M.

ANOTHER BODY BLOW TO 'T. B.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 25—The question of alcoholic power does not enter into the question of violation of war time prohibition. Federal Court Judge Page ruled today in a hearing brought on by demurrer against charges made in a case similar to the Pittsburgh brewery case. "It is unnecessary to prove the liquor intoxicating it is only necessary to prove it beer or wine," said Judge Page.

FOREIGN BANK BILL REPORTED FAVORABLY

WASHINGTON, July 25—The Senate Banking and Currency committee today reported favorably the measure permitting the formation of foreign banking concerns provided the control is vested in Americans. They must also be under the supervision of the Federal Reserve. The new measure would allow the establishment of American banking branches in foreign countries through which foreign trade could be financed.

FROM THE HUNGARIAN ARMY FRONT

VIENNA, July 23—(Delayed) The start of the Allied offensive against the Hungarian Red Army appears imminent today. A number of Allied officers inspected the Hungarian White Army today with a view to co-operation. The commander of the White Army, Admiral Hortly, received the officers and then sent them to the front. The Hungarian Red Army is placed at eight divisions, 60,000 front line men and 100,000 in reserve.

NEW YORK BOLSHIEVSKI INQUIRY STARTS

NEW YORK CITY, July 25—Several labor leaders are to be called as witnesses before the Lusk Joint Committee to investigate alleged Bolshievski activities here. Department of Labor officials have instructed the Immigration officials to proceed with deportation of all who show any inclination to be of anarchistic tendencies.

AIR SERVICE NEW YORK TO ATLANTIC CITY

NEW YORK, July 25—An aerial passenger service between New York City and Atlantic City will begin today. Three planes, carrying three passengers, will be employed, running on a ninety minute schedule.

SENATE DIRECTS START OF PACKER PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 25—The Senate today directed the Federal Trade Commission to make an immediate investigation of packer's methods in buying cattle and hogs. The resolution was presented by Senator Harris of Georgia and was adopted without roll call.

FIRST AIR PILOT
STRIKE IN HISTORY
THIS MORNING

NEW YORK CITY, July 25—Thirty pilots of the aerial mail service failed to report for duty at the Belmont Field station here this morning. It is a strike—the first strike in the history of air pilots. They are learning fast.

The strike is the outcome of a demand made yesterday by the pilots that two of their number, Leon Smith and Hamilton Lee, be reinstated after a dismissal by the Post Office Department on charges that they refused to take out their planes on Tuesday. The pilots declared that the planes furnished them were unsafe and that the condition of the weather was unfavorable for flying, there being heavy fog and a stormy atmosphere. The Post Office officials contended that the weather while bad was not sufficiently bad to warrant an interruption of the service.

Today's strike apparently affects only the New York to Washington route, but may have a wider scope as to planes went over Clearfield this morning.

Air pilots receive from $2000 to $3600 per year and the pilots have also complained that their pay is in many cases no higher than the mechanics who work around the hangars and who do not risk their lives in flying.

The airmen declared that they had formerly protested to the Postoffice Department that the planes supplied them were poorly adapted for flying even in good weather, as they had 100-horsepower Liberty motors of high compression with a minimum speed of 100 miles an hour. They said they desired slower and lighter machines, as in misty or foggy weather visibility is so low as to make heavy, high speed craft dangerous.

The pilots claimed they had informed their superiors that certain planes, repaired many times, were unsafe to travel in. They further asserted they had asked for stabilizers, which, in a fog, would show whether the men were flying on an even keel or upside down. These indicators, the men say, cost $75, but they were informed, they said, by Mr. Praeger that "they should steer by compass, as the turn indicators are too expensive."

WILL HAYES TO BE
INDIANA CANDIDATE

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25—Will H. Hayes, Republican National Chairman, will be a candidate for the governorship of Indiana. He is expected to throw his hat into the ring when he addresses a convention of Republican editors on Friday.

TWO DEAD IN FIRE

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 25—Two dead and four missing is the toll of a fire which broke out in the tenement district here early today.

HARD COAL MINERS
FORMULATE DEMAND

SCRANTON, PA., July 24—A sixty per cent wage increase and a six-hour working day will be among the demands made next spring by the mine workers of the anthracite field, it was declared today. Announcement followed the day's session of the bi-annual convention of the miners' union of the Scranton district, at which the delegates voted to present to the mine operators the following: The wage increase of 60 per cent with a minimum of $8.00 per day. A six hour working day, five and a half days per week. The closed shop. Time and a half for Sundays and holiday work.

The demands framed today will be presented to the tri-district convention in Wilkes-Barre next month, and it was declared the other two districts of the hard coal field will probably follow suit.

RED CROSS PAGEANT TONIGHT

The pageant "The Story of the Red Cross" will be given this evening in the High School auditorium under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The proceeds will go to the jubilee or fiftieth anniversary fund of the organization which will be used for world work including child welfare, law enforcement, missions, and reconstruction work along various lines. Admission 25c. See this attractive entertainment and help a good cause.

WOODLAND YOUNG MEN FINED

A couple of young men were before the Court this afternoon and were fined $25 and costs for violation of Judge Bell's recent order against immorality.

ALLIED LABOR MEN
IN INTERNATIONAL
MEETING TOMORROW

AMSTERDAM, July 25—Eminent representatives of organized labor in many of the countries of Europe and in the United States are here in readiness for the opening of the international conference tomorrow. The chief purpose of the gathering will be to formulate a program and discuss questions to be brought before the international labor conference to be held in Washington, D. C., in October under the terms of the league covenant agreed upon in Paris. Samuel Gompers and Daniel J. Tobin, respectively president and treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, are here as the representatives of the labor organizations in America.

GOODYEAR OFFERS TO PAY

CHICAGO, ILL., July 24—A new departure in the settlement of claims is foreseen in the report that the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, will ask a committee of Chicago citizens to fix amounts to be paid to the families of the thirty-nine dead and injured persons who were caught in the "blimp" disaster last Monday. The company announces that it will not oppose the payment of the amounts fixed by the committee and that the families of the killed and injured will not be compelled to accept the awards.

JEAN WILKINSON
MAY BE ALIVE

CHICAGO, ILL., July 25—Belief was renewed here today that Jeanne Wilkinson, the six-year-old little girl who has been missing from her home for three days, is alive and probably being held for ransom by her captors. Thomas Fitzgerald, a workman around Jeanne's father's store, was held shortly after her disappearance and is still being detained. Fitzgerald was very friendly with the little girl and his actions after her disappearance led the police to believe that he knew something about it. Today Mrs. Marjorie Fitzgerald, wife of Thomas, returned from Bangor, Michigan, where she had been visiting and made application to use her husband who is confined in the jail. She was accorded the opportunity and during the conversation a detective secreted himself within hearing distance. As a result of the overheard conversation Mrs. Fitzgerald was not allowed to leave the prison but was confined to a separate cell. There are no formal charges preferred against either of them as yet.

IMMORTALS

WILLIAM R. PECK, Sergeant, Company C, 504th Infantry. Sergeant Peck (deceased) received the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Remondville November 1, 1918. He was advancing with his company across an open field when enemy guns opened fire on them from two sides. The attention of the platoon commander was directed to the gun on his direct front, while the enemy on the right was leveling his gun upon him. Seeing the predicament of his commander, Sgt. Peck threw himself against the enemy, saving him from a direct hit. He was instantly killed. His home was in Waukegan, Ill.

Why Every Citizen Who Can Should Own His Home and Should Build Now

By GEORGE M. WINTHROP, Chicago Bank President

It should be every man's ambition to own his home. In realizing that ambition he will be providing for the future of his family and himself. He will be going far more than merely furnishing a roof over the head of those he loves; he will be laying the foundation upon which his children will build firmness and nobility of character.

A permanent residence in the home you own means the development of a higher type of citizenship for the home owners have pride in the community. They know that the general standard of the community will be raised or lowered by the interest or lack of interest they take in civic affairs.

Apparently, not much is to be gained by waiting for a decline in prices of building materials, for authorities tell us it is impossible for prices to drop to any considerable extent in the face of costs of production which are likely to continue without much change for at least a year or two longer.

Don't Dumb by Faint Praise, but Jump In and Make Ideals Realities

EDITORIAL IN "CARRY ON," Reconstruction Magazine

Efforts have been made to tell every wounded soldier, either in hospital or on the transport bringing him home, or upon his arrival in this country about the plans of his government to cure him as far as is humanly possible, and then retrain him for a new occupation if this is necessary. If possible by the million have been distributed telling these men of their rights first in the hospitals, then under the federal board of vocational education act and finally the provisions made for their compensation.

In spite of these efforts many of these disabled men are still skeptical. Still think that the government plans to cheat them out of their money. But since they have become permanently disabled fighting for this country this country is simply going to throw them on the scrap heap.

These views are due to an insidious propaganda which consciously or otherwise has been spread around.

A wounded soldier who had just returned from overseas and was in the Government hospital in New York stepped into a drug store while waiting.

"Here's your artificial arm?" asked the druggist.

"I haven't got it yet from the government," replied the soldier.

"No, and you never will. That's all bunk about Uncle Sam giving you a new arm; you better go and buy an Easifit arm for yourself."

Three disabled soldiers were talking the other day. One of them said: "I rode downtown with a man today in his auto. This fellow said there was no such red tape in Washington that us disabled guys wouldn't ever get any pensions. He also said we were fools to believe all that bull about being retrained for new jobs. Guess he was right. I'm going to get my discharge and go home and try to find a job before they're all gone."

Every patriotic citizen should stamp out such propaganda just as thoroughly as they did the Hun propaganda during the war. The gigantic task which confronted certain departments of the government may have seemed them up in the beginning, but every agency entrusted with this work is now hitting its stride. Our disabled soldiers will be re-educated, will be furnished with the necessary appliances when they are ready for the same, and will be retrained and placed in profitable employment.

It is your government and you have a part in this great work. Don't dumb by faint praise but jump in and help make these high ideals realities.

BISMARCK'S FRUITS.

The latest biographer of Bismarck, C. Grant Robertson, calls attention to the way in which the great German chancellor was responsible for his own destruction. It was Bismarck's aim to build, not a constitutional government, but an autocracy, says Kansas City Star. In himself he concentrated the whole power of the state. Then came the young William II to the throne, restless and ambitious. The two clashed. Had Bismarck been the parliament-made minister of a constitutional sovereign it would have been William who would have had to give way. For the chancellor had the confidence of the nation. But, as Mr. Robertson says, while a plebiscite would have retained him in office, the nation could not save him. He had made that impossible. As a result of his fall Bismarck denounced as "Byzantinism and caesar worship" this very irresponsible power which it had been his life work to build up. The same ironical fate might be traced in the further development of Bismarck's handwork. The state which he founded on iron and blood came to ruin by attempting to expand his policy.

It is well-known that kings and queens work desperately hard for their salaries. The pursuit of life they have in abundance, but liberty and happiness, requiring much leisure, are not for them. Since the wars, and their activities have become furious, and the few monarchs left are earning overtime. The royal engagement pad will not permit a headache to stand in the way of opening a memorial arch. None of the comfortable subtleties of private life can excuse a queen. A writer in the Kansas City Star describes Queen Mary's crowded day, from the early morning hours until late at night, and it is evident that she must have little use for a chaise longue, while the king, not overburdened with tasks of state, like a president, nevertheless has not a moment to himself. If our own executive were to attempt to combine social labors with the strenuous schedule he is now undertaking, by aid of Admiral Graydon, there would be fears for his endurance.

The work of the Salvation Army with the army was of such magnitude in the way of results that its members came back from the war zone, practically without criticism on their organization, methods and with the love, respect and admiration of men of all ranks. They faced all the actual risks of war, in the discharge of their duty, and some paid the supreme sacrifice in ministering to the needs of the soldiers. Their appeal now ought to reach to the heart of the country they served so well, and receive substantial appreciation of their work in the war.

What the whole world needs now is the fishing cure. There is no other balm so effective for strained nerves and worried souls. Fishing is said to encourage falsehood, but we believe that is a slander invented by would-be humorists, who never fish except for stale jokes. On the contrary, it encourages nearly all the virtues. It's difficult to conceive of a true fisherman who is not a philosopher and a good citizen. Let's halt the world's business and go fishing. It is a sure cure for that tired, worried feeling.

Possibly the allies may find that they have unwittingly done Germany a favor by abolishing it from the old and gloomy burdens of militarism, while aiming to cripple it. At any rate, heavy armaments in France and England will put them at a disadvantage with German industry to that extent.

It is not surprising that England lays claim to a number of the German ships seized by the United States. When everything is settled, it will be found that if England has not come out of the big end of the horn it will not be for lack of effort on her part.

America has spent $30,000,000 in relief work and sent 270,000 tons of food to starving Europe. And it has come out of the war asking no spoils. That is a record to be proud of we are handing down to posterity.

Be Pretty! Turn Gray Hair Dark

Try Grandmother's old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this thru your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

FOR BETTER ROADS

CHANGE IDEAS ON HIGHWAYS

Non-Motoring Public No Longer Regards Good Roads as Speedways for Fortunate Neighbors.

The public's conception of "good roads" has undergone a radical change in the last two years.

Prior to the entry of the United States into the world war, the non-motoring American public, more often than not, thought good roads were advocated chiefly for the benefit of their more fortunate neighbors who owned and drove their own motor cars, writes E. A. Williams, Jr., president of a large motor truck company. They were inclined to regard good roads laws as class legislation and were unwilling for the most part to lend either financial or moral support to the construction and upkeep of something from which they derived no direct benefits so far as they could see.

The war merely hastened what leaders of the industry had foreseen for several years; it furnished the setting and the conditions which enabled the truck to establish itself as a factor in the economic life of the country.

The non-motoring public no longer looks upon good roads as "speedways" for the motoring "aristocracy." It has come to realize that motor trucks are essential as transportation factors, and that good roads are necessary to the efficient operation of trucks. Its vision has been broadened; it sees the advantages and benefits which accrue from a combination of these factors—benefits which have a direct bearing upon the economic conditions of the community.

It sees the farm brought, one might say, to the very table of the consumer; it sees an ultimate decrease in food prices; and, those who pause to consider the matter further, see the ever expanding range of possibilities of the truck and its ally, good roads.

With the universal recognition and adoption of the motor truck the public's conception of how roads should be built also has undergone a change. Heretofore there has been a vast difference between the average man's idea of good roads and that of the experienced engineer. The average man was content to build for the present; the engineer, as a result of past and not altogether satisfactory experience, ence, knows and has known the importance of building for the future as well as the present.

The first thing a railroad does after obtaining a right-of-way, as everyone knows, is to build a roadbed and lay tracks. That roadbed is put in to stay. The track, which corresponds to the surface of the highway, is built of the most substantial and practical material to be had.

The railroad officials, however, do not expect this roadbed and track to last forever without attention. Long ago they learned that the only way to assure safety and durability is to anticipate depreciation and make constant repairs.

That is just what we are coming to in road building. For years it has been customary for county engineers to direct such operations but for the most part their work has been hampered by lack of funds, and inadequate force or by limited legislation and more or less red tape. There are some states in which farmers are still working out their road tax by the day, hauling gravel or stone in a more or less haphazard fashion for the construction of roads; upon their efforts and those of a limited force of hired workers depends the maintenance of the community's highways.

MR. TITUS WAD SURE IS ONE FRUGAL GUY

SOME OLDTIMER MAY TRIM DEMPSEY YET

By H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 25.—It clearly demonstrated a short time ago in a ring at Toledo, Ohio, that "youth must be served," but let's see if it really must.

Athletics, as a rule, in every line of effort, are about the same, so far as supremacy of youth or age is concerned. We find ball players passing out of the limelight at an age that strikes a fairly good average at 30 years; fighters drop hard after they have gone by that mark; runners, pole vaulters, football players—practically all who strive to amuse the public by athletic prowess, wither away as age creeps on them.

But there are exceptions to the rule. There are the Giants, for instance. Aged, decrepit, they have been called, yet the men led by John J. McGraw have set the pace for the National league practically all the season. There isn't a regular infielder on the club under 30. The pitching staff is composed of veterans for the most part. George Burns and Benny Kauff have far too many years over their heads to be placed in the chicken class. The youngsters of the club are the chaps who are holding down bench positions, rather than the aged ones.

This club, it has been promised by many an expert, will crack in the dog days. But will it? It certainly is traveling at a fine clip now and shows small signs of cracking.

Then we have Dick Remer. If you never saw Dick Remer do a walking race you have missed a great sight. Dick has been winning walks for so long he can do it with his eyes shut and lead in his shoes. He walks around the youngsters. There isn't a man in the nation who can approach his form and speed when he is right. George Goulding is the only man on the track he has any great respect for, and Goulding has been making walking records for a good many years himself.

And then there is Jack Britton, who was defeated for the welterweight championship by Ted Lewis, only to come back and knock out Lewis. Britton is past 35 and is a better battler now than at any time in his career.

Pop Geers, who is so old he has quit counting, is still driving winning races on Grand Circuit tracks.

Doc Roller, who was considerable shucks as a wrestler before most of us knew what a rattle was, is still pinning shoulders to mats.

Youth will be served, of course, in most ventures, but age also has its flings in many cases, and don't forget it.

TAFT'S MUCH DISCUSSED LETTERS TO HAYES ON THE LEAGUE PROBLEM

Six reservations to the league of nations suggested by William Howard Taft in a letter to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, which it is believed will enable many members of the Republican opposition in the Senate to support the covenant, were made public today.

Mr. Taft said the reservations he suggested should make clear all the disputed points and enable the United States to obtain the "inestimable benefits" of the league of nations.

The existing situation relative to the league of nations and the peace treaty in the senate is due, Mr. Taft said, to the "very serious mistakes of policy committed by President Wilson. The partisan character of his administration during the war, together with his appeal to his countrymen to elect a Democratic Congress in November, 1918, created a condition of personal and political antagonism toward him among Republican leaders, which is shared by a majority of the American people."

Mr. Taft's Letters to Hays

The letters, both dated Pointe-a-Pic, Quebec, July 2, follow:

"My dear Mr. Hays--In what I said yesterday I did not go over the various interpretations and reservations, because I thought that in our previous correspondence they were sufficiently explained. I think it wise, now that I have formulated them, after a good deal of thought, to take up my reasons in detail for suggesting them.

"Speaking generally, I wish to emphasize my conviction that the United States Senate might well ratify the present treaty, without any reservations or interpretations. I am confident that the actual operation of the treaty after ratification would bring about exactly the same result as that which would be attained by the acceptance of these interpretations and reservations, but it seems to me to be the part of statesmen to recognize the exigencies, personal, partisan and political, of a situation in seeking to achieve real progress and reform.

"The situation which confronts us now in reference to the ratification of the treaty is one created by very serious mistakes of policy committed by Mr. Wilson. The partisan character of his administration during the war, together with his appeal to his countrymen to elect a Democratic Congress in November, 1918, created a condition of personal and political antagonism toward him among Republican leaders, which was shared by a majority of the American people. This was shown in the results of the election. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Wilson persisted in continuing the same partisan exclusion of Republicans in dealing with the highly important matter of settling the results of the war.

Commission Unexperienced

"He selected a commission, in which the Republicans had no representation and in which there were no prominent Americans of any real experience and leadership of public opinion. With such a commission, his unusual course in going abroad himself, as President, greatly emphasized the personal element in the framing of the treaty and intensified the general tendency to oppose anything that he might bring home, because of his apparent wish to dictate the policy of the world and to monopolize the credit for it.

"I feel that some of the defects of the league of nations are due to him. I am confident that he prevented the adoption of the plan of the league to enforce peace in respect to an international court and the settlement of justiciable questions. This was, as I am advised, in the English plan, but was studiously omitted from the very satisfactory American plan. His prejudice against courts is well known. Article X, I think is due to him primarily, because it is merely the embodiment of the last of his fourteen points. While it came from his suggestion, however, it suited the demand of the French, so far as it went, and I believe it to be now the heart of the league in tending to unite the forces of the world in police duty to suppress wars of conquest.

"BAYER CROSS" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Always buy an unbroken Bayer package which contains proper directions to safely relieve Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Colds and pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents at drug stores--larger packages also. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer.

"The power of amendment, contained within the terms of the league, offers full opportunity to remedy the defects of the league with reference to the international court and other respects. The great point which supporters of the league of nations now should seek is the establishment of the basis upon which, through amendment, the league can be perfected. It is absolutely necessary to retain Article X in order to stabilize the world. The fluid condition of the region of the war threatens the stability of the world, and it needs the united forces of the world to restore a normal condition of self-maintenance. In my judgment, therefore, it would be most unfortunate if the cautionary influence of Article X may not be retained in the crucial decade through which the world is to pass.

Hostility Endangers Ratification

"The attitude of hostility toward the President has aroused criticism and opposition which might have been avoided had he taken with him such a man as Mr. Root and two representatives of the foreign relations committee in the Senate. The criticism thus aroused has stirred the conscience of a number of Republican senators and has endangered the ratification of the league by two-thirds of the Senate.

"Mr. Wilson's influence with his Democratic supporters in the Senate will secure perhaps forty-five votes. Nineteen Republican votes are needed, and the question is how they can be secured. I don't think they can be secured except by relieving their consciences through reassuring interpretations of the league of such a character that they are likely to be accepted without further negotiation and conference and delay by the other nations who dictated the peace. After consideration of the arguments made on the subject, I have formulated these interpretations and reservations, with the hope that they will suggest a basis of agreement between the Democrats and sufficient Republicans to ratify the treaty and secure us the inestimable benefit of a league of nations which will be the foundation for growth and development into a new era in our international relations.

"The attempt of such men as Senator Borah, Senator Johnson, Senator Sherman and others to defeat the treaty and the deliberate exaggeration of the Shantung feature of the treaty do not, I think, indicate the attitude of the majority of the Republican party in the Senate, and I do not think that any attention should be paid to the suggestion that the treaty be amended in its provisions with reference to the re-arrangement of the map of the region of the war.

"To repeat I am strongly in favor of ratifying the treaty as it is. Were I in the Senate, I would not hesitate to vote for it, but the situation may require concession to secure ratification, and I suggest what I have already sent to you, a copy of which I enclose, as something that will secure a useful league of nations, which may be improved and which at the same time may satisfy the genuine objections of the Republican friends of the league in the Senate.

Interpretations Suggested

"Coming now to specify interpretations, it seems to me that the first achieves all that the draftsmen of the withdrawal clause intended, and as thus interpreted relieves that clause from a possible construction by which the actual withdrawal on two years' notice might be greatly hindered through the claims of the other members of the league.

"The second interpretation has to do with the presence in the league, as members, of self-governing dominions of colonies of a home government, also a member. Certainly in a small body like that of the council, it would be unfair to have a home government represented and also one of its dominions or colonies, and I cannot think it was the intention of the framers of the covenant that this might happen. Yet I am bound to say that such a result is not excluded by the present language of the covenant in Article X and Article IV; nor does the language of Article XV necessarily exclude from the tribunal to recommend a settlement of a dispute, a home government where one of its dominions or colonies is a party, nor does it necessarily exclude a dominion or colony from such tribunal where the home government may be a party; yet

"I have no doubt that both of these exclusions were intended by the framers of the covenant, nor is there any express description of the function to be performed by the council or the assembly under Article XV, so as to require that it should act judicially and according to international law or equity and justice. I have no doubt that it was intended that the language of the preamble should characterize the function of the duties of the council or assembly under Article XV. And therefore, that the language I have introduced in the second interpretation

tion is merely giving expression to that which ought to be inferred as the intention of the framers of the covenant. I may say that it supplies that which Mr. Root forcibly represented as a defect of the covenant.

Article X Defined

"The third interpretation is an exact legal construction of the effect of Article X, and I do not see how any of the signatory powers can object to it. The conclusions in respect to the function of Congress under this article is the necessary result of the distribution of power under our constitution to which none of the associate members of the league can object.

The fourth interpretation is a mere statement of international law and the proper construction of the seventh paragraph of Article XV, which is only inserted to satisfy criticism of that paragraph, based on the unfounded assumption that some tribunal of the league will be found which will declare issues in respect to immigration or the tariff to be something other than a question of domestic policy. It, as all authorities show, immigration and tariff unaffected by treaties are purely domestic questions, then it cannot injure the league to say that which is undoubtedly a maxim of international law and remove the concern of those who suspect other nations of being in constant and unprincipled conspiracy against the interests of the United States. We may deplore this attitude of mind, but where it costs nothing in the effectiveness of the league we may well insert a provision to remove the fears it prompts. "The fifth interpretation defines the Monroe Doctrine. As the expression 'Monroe Doctrine' is used in Article XXI, and as the United States is the author of the doctrine and has maintained it for ninety-six years, it is fairly within the limit of an interpretation for it to state what the doctrine has been made to be in the history of its development to the present day. As the time has come for its world recognition, the time has also come for its definition, and I believe the language used correctly states what we have a right to claim it to be and all that we have the right to claim it to be.

FAIT'S MUCH DISCUSSED LETTERS TO HAYES ON THE LEAGUE PROBLEM

"These interpretations, it seems to me reasonably answer all the reasonable or sincere criticisms made against the league except as they are met by the single reservation as to Article X, which is suggested at the close. Mr. Root, in his letter to you, proposed that the operation of Article X be limited to five years when the settlements of the war should be examined, with the view to the further operation of the article after a resettlement. Influenced by some direct information that I have as to the attitude of France in respect to Article 10, I am confident that the period of five years is not long enough for this stabilization and does not offer the security which France eagerly seeks under the league or by supplemental treaty. I think, therefore, that the cautious influence of the league would be greatly strengthened by lengthening this period from five to ten years. It seems to me that ought to be done by the formal exercise of the right to withdraw as a member of the league after ten years by giving notice to that effect.

"The nations of the league can be sure that should the league work well, the United States will withdraw the notice and continue to bear its part of the world's burden in securing the benefits of the league, if those benefits are apparent after ten years' trial. The provision, however, may tend to satisfy doubters in respect to the league by requiring for its extension beyond ten years the affirmative action of the President and two-thirds of the Senate in favor of such extension after the trial of a decade. Meantime, should the failure of the league be apparent before the expiration of the ten years, the withdrawal clause gives us full opportunity to end our relation to the league by a two years' notice.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE STANDING

The City Team defeated the Third Ward teamers in a twilight league game last evening by a score of 7 to 1. Following is the league standing to date:

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

HAROLD W. ROBERTS,
Corporal, Company A, 342nd Battalion, Tank Corps.

For deliberately going to his death to save a companion in the Montreux woods, France, October 4, 1918, Corp. Roberts was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Corp. Roberts, a tank driver, was moving his tank into a clump of bushes to afford protection to another tank which had been disabled. The tank slid into a shell hole, ten feet deep, filled with water, and was immediately submerged. Knowing that only one of the two men in the tank could escape, Corp. Roberts said to the gunner, "Well, only one of us can get out, and out you go," whereupon he pushed his companion through the back door of the tank and was himself drowned. Corp. Roberts' home address was 5 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

A TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF EMMA McDOWELL

By the standard of the Nazarine a life is great when it is beautiful in that every line of character holds proportion, gives symmetry, suggests righteousness, inspires broad sympathies and impels generous services.

By this standard Emma McDowell's life was both great and beautiful. Generously endowed by nature she responded readily to the influences of righteousness until her thoughts were bound into a thousand cables that drew her sympathies, her devotions, and her service to the weak and woe of almost humanity itself, binding the joys and sorrows, especially of the young, to her personal interest until it moulded her every thought and act into a worthy service.

In her chosen work as teacher she lent an inspiration to pupils that could only result from broad sympathies, untiring devotion and complete self-sacrifice. Her influences in this sphere time will measure. When many of the young lives meet the struggle of existence, surrounded with its cares and temptations, they will bless the life of this teacher for the joy and sunshine, the ideas and ideals that was woven into their being as they sat under her guidance and instruction.

Arduous as was her school duties, and limited as was her strength at times, she was always doing good by stealth; seeking whom she might assist by encouragement, by advice or by modest material aid, contributing her best to the cause she recognized as the mission of man, the service of the Master.

There are those whose memory may be perpetuated by towering shafts or stately mausoleums, by the eulogies of sages or the songs of bards but here was a life that will live by its Christian love and kindness as it will be reflected by those who came under its influence.

Emma McDowell's life was beautiful.

THE FRENCHVILLE PICNIC

The famous Frenchville picnic which is scheduled for Wednesday, August 28th, this year, will be the forty-first annual gathering at this popular point. The Frenchville picnic is the oldest and best known picnic in the county and appears to gain favor with age. We know whereof we speak, too, because we have just missed two of these picnics in the last 28 years, and expect to go this year "if the Lord is willin'" and the creek don't raise."

LIFT OFF CORNS!

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet. A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS CURWENSVILLE

The Curwensville-Morrisdale ball game at Athletic Park yesterday afternoon was a lulu and the spectators did not regret paying the price of admission, for they witnessed a game of real baseball. Both sides entered the contest with a determination of winning and played ball according to Hoyle. During the first half of the game the Morrisdale boys had the advantage in run getting, but Kelly's Elks took a fresh hold on themselves and sort of stampeded their opponents and started in to add some marks on the score card. They kept in mind the lambasting they received at the hands of Blaine City on Tuesday, and that was the main incentive that made them play real ball, finally winning the game by a score of 9 to 8.

Mr. Richards will accept a few pupils for instruction at home, 413 Grampian Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Al McNaul and two daughters, Wava and Verrill, are spending a couple of weeks in Atlantic City and Cape May.

Miss Ruth LaPorte returned last evening from Pittsburgh where she spent the past two weeks with friends.

Willard McNaul, of Pittsburgh, is home for a short vacation.

Miss Ruth Robinson entertained at the M. E. church last evening, the teachers of the primary department of the M. E. Sunday School.

Postmaster G. F. Kettleberger received one day this week about a thousand pasteboard saving banks from the department which will be distributed among the kids and other folks. The object is to induce those who receive a bank to save their pennies until the amount reaches a stipulated sum and then purchase a Thrift Stamp. "A penny saved is a penny earned," is one of the admonitions on the bank, while another one reads, "It's fun to turn your pennies into Thrift Stamps and know that you are helping Uncle 'Sara'." In January 1924 you receive $5.00 for every war saving stamp. Start right in now to save.

Chas. Sweney has been going to and from his work at the Bickford office, dargging along a "game leg," that member being injured while Mr. Sweney was cranking his auto.

Taking advantage of the fine weather and good roads yesterday, a number of Curwensville people motored to Altoona and attended Methodist Day.

Miss Gladys Draucker, who has been spending several weeks with relatives in this place, left for her home in Lock Haven today. She is the youngest daughter of Jack L. Draucker, who for a number of years was manager of the Dyer stores.

The repair work on the Bloom bridge is progressing rapidly and will soon be completed in full.

Night-Blooming Party Frocks

If you would forget that there is anything in the world but joy, spend a little time looking at the party frocks in which the summer girl will dance some hours away. If these dance frocks flourished in the daytime, bees and butterflies might pursue them, for they certainly borrow from flowers their color and piquancy and sunshine glimmers in their brocades and embroideries. Evening gowns indulge in sumptuous materials. In gold and silver tissue, in rich embroideries and twinkling sequins and all kinds of shimmering things—including the new shot taffetas. Finally they turn to tulle and laces or sheer crepe. A world of fine and fragile fabrics belongs to them.
The two pretty party frocks shown here are of the simpler designs, one of them in white and the other in black with embroidery and brocade sash in metal and colored brocade. The white frock has a slim underslip of embroidered satin, draped about the ankles and full draperies of fine net ending in points about the bottom, hang over it. A vestee of twinkling sequins fills the V-shaped opening of the bodice—the net makes a filmy drape that falls from the shoulder. For a lovely finishing touch a narrow ribbon hangs in loops and ends from the girdle.
Black georgette over a satin slip serves for the dignified gown at the left of the picture. Its construction is so simple that the picture tells about all that can be told. It has a very plain bodice with round neck, bound with brocade. The skirt is gathered to this and hangs straight with an overhanging panel at the front that is embroidered near the bottom. The same embroidery appears at the sides below the hipline. A very gorgeous sash of heavy brocaded ribbon makes the wide girdle with one long hanging end.

Substitute for Fur.
The reported decision of clothing manufacturers, particularly specialty houses, of going more into leather-lined or convertible overcoats for next fall and winter finds an echo in the women's wear trade. According to a dress goods representative the suggestion that leather be substituted in some cases for fur trimmings has met with quite a little response. The price consideration is not one that holds the important place for the change, even though there is a difference in favor of the use of leather, but the novelty of leather trimmings is expected to be a big factor.

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS

VOLUME XIV

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA. FRIDAY EVENING JULY 25, 1919

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS
ON LEAGUE PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, July 25—While Senate administration leaders contend that the league situation is not materially changed by the advent of the Taft letters, senators opposed to the ratification of the league only with reservations say that the Taft letters show convincing and clearly the absolute need of reservations. Administration Leader Hitchcock today announced that the administration program is unchanged and that it is for the "unqualified endorsement" of the pact as signed by the peace delegates. The situation is tense today over the failure of the president to make any reply to three senate resolutions asking for information in regard to the treaty.

President Wilson plans to present to the Senate the Anglo-French-American defense treaty immediately after he had finished his speaking tour. The President is now preparing a speech to be delivered on the occasion of the presentation of the pact. This announcement was made at the White House today.

It is doubtless the outgrowth of severe criticism of the president in the Senate yesterday when it was shown that the supplemental treaty should have been presented along with the peace treaty. It has already been presented to the French Chamber of Deputies in accordance with the understanding had at Paris.

ASK MILLION AND A HALF TO FIGHT FLU

WASHINGTON, July 25—Congress is asked to appropriate $1,500,000 to fight Spanish influenza. Congressman Fess, of Ohio, in introducing the measure declared that medical men believe there was a great probability of return of the epidemic. According to figures compiled by the American Medical Association there were 500,000 deaths and an economic loss of over four billion dollars caused by the recent epidemic. Fess declared the time is ripe for extensive research and believes that the work should be undertaken by the Public Health Department.

ANOTHER BODY BLOW TO 'T. B.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 25—The question of alcoholic power does not enter into the question of violation of war time prohibition. Federal Court Judge Page ruled today in a hearing brought on by demurrer against charges made in a case similar to the Pittsburgh brewery case. "It is unnecessary to prove the liquor intoxicating it is only necessary to prove it beer or wine," said Judge Page.

FOREIGN BANK BILL REPORTED FAVORABLY

WASHINGTON, July 25—The Senate Banking and Currency committee today reported favorably the measure permitting the formation of foreign banking concerns provided the control is vested in Americans. They must also be under the supervision of the Federal Reserve. The new measure would allow the establishment of American banking branches in foreign countries through which foreign trade could be financed.

FROM THE HUNGARIAN ARMY FRONT

VIENNA, July 23—(Delayed) The start of the Allied offensive against the Hungarian Red Army appears imminent today. A number of Allied officers inspected the Hungarian White Army today with a view to co-operation. The commander of the White Army, Admiral Hortly, received the officers and then sent them to the front. The Hungarian Red Army is placed at eight divisions, 60,000 front line men and 100,000 in reserve.

FIRST AIR PILOT
STRIKE IN HISTORY
THIS MORNING

NEW YORK CITY, July 25—Thirty pilots of the aerial mail service failed to report for duty at the Belmont Field station here this morning. It is a strike—the first strike on record of air pilots. They are learning fast.

The strike is the outcome of a demand made yesterday by the pilots that two of their number, Leon Smith and Hamilton Lee, be reinstated after a dismissal by the Post Office Department on charges that they refused to take out their planes on Tuesday. The pilots declared that the planes furnished them were unsafe and that the condition of the weather was unfavorable for flying, there being heavy fog and a stormy atmosphere. The Post Office officials contended that the weather while bad was not sufficiently bad to warrant an interruption of the service.

Today's strike apparently affects only the New York to Washington route, but may have a wider scope as to planes went over Clearfield this morning.

Air pilots receive from $2000 to $3600 per year and the pilots have also complained that their pay is in many cases no higher than the mechanics who work around the hangars and who do not risk their lives in flying.

The airmen declared that they had formerly protested to the Postoffice Department that the planes supplied them were poorly adapted for flying even in good weather, as they had 100-horsepower Liberty motors of high compression with a minimum speed of 100 miles an hour. They said they desired slower and lighter machines, as in misty or foggy weather visibility is so low as to make heavy, high speed craft dangerous.

The pilots claimed they had informed their superiors that certain planes, repaired many times, were unsafe to travel in. They further asserted they had asked for stabilizers, which, in a fog, would show whether the men were flying on an even keel or upside down. These indicators, the men say, cost $75, but they were informed, they said, by Mr. Praeger that "they should steer by compass, as the turn indicators are too expensive."

TWO DEAD IN FIRE

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 25—Two dead and four missing is the toll of a fire which broke out in the tenement district here early today.

HARD COAL MINERS
FORMULATE DEMAND

SCRANTON, PA., July 24—A sixty per cent wage increase and a six-hour working day will be among the demands made next spring by the mine workers of the anthracite field, it was declared today. Announcement followed the day's session of the bi-ennial convention of the miners' union of the Scranton district, at which the delegates voted to present to the mine operators the following: The wage increase of 60 per cent with a minimum of $8.00 per day. A six hour working day, five and a half days per week. The closed shop. Time and a half for Sundays and holiday work. The demands framed today will be presented to the tri-district convention in Wilkes-Barre next month, and it was declared the other two districts of the hard coal field will probably follow suit.

RED CROSS PAGEANT TONIGHT

The pageant "The Story of the Red Cross" will be given this evening in the High School auditorium under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. ALLIED LABOR MEN
IN INTERNATIONAL
MEETING TOMORROW

AMSTERDAM, July 25—Eminent representatives of organized labor in many of the countries of Europe and in the United States are here in readiness for the opening of the international conference tomorrow. The chief purpose of the gathering will be to formulate a program and discuss questions to be brought before the international labor conference to be held in Washington, D. C., in October under the terms of the league covenant agreed upon in Paris. Samuel Gompers and Daniel J. Tobin, respectively president and treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, are here as the representatives of the labor organizations in America.

GOODYEAR OFFERS TO PAY

CHICAGO, ILL., July 24—A new departure in the settlement of claims is foreseen in the report that the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, will ask a committee of Chicago citizens to fix amounts to be paid to the families of the thirty-nine dead and injured persons who were caught in the "blimp" disaster last Monday. The company announces that it will not oppose the payment of the amounts fixed by the committee and that the families of the killed and injured will not be compelled to accept the awards.

JEAN WILKINSON
MAY BE ALIVE

CHICAGO, ILL., July 25—Belief was renewed here today that Jeanne Wilkinson, the six-year-old little girl who has been missing from her home for three days, is alive and probably being held for ransom by her captors. Thomas Fitzgerald, a workman around Jeanne's father's store, was held shortly after her disappearance and is still being detained. Fitzgerald was very friendly with the little girl and his actions after her disappearance led the police to believe that he knew something about it. Today Mrs. Marjorie Fitzgerald, wife of Thomas, returned from Bangor, Michigan, where she had been visiting and made application to use her husband who is confined in the jail. She was accorded the opportunity and during the conversation a detective secreted himself within hearing distance. As a result of the overheard conversation Mrs. Fitzgerald was not allowed to leave the prison but was confined to a separate cell. There are no formal charges preferred against either of them as yet.

IMMORTALS

WILLIAM R. PECK, Sergeant, Company C, 504th Infantry. Sergeant Peck (deceased) received the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Remondville November 1, 1918. He was advancing with his company across an open field when enemy guns opened fire on them from two sides. The attention of the platoon commander was directed to the gun on his direct front, while the enemy on the right was leveling his gun upon him. Seeing the predicament of his commander, Sergeant Peck threw himself against the enemy, saving him from a direct hit. He was instantly killed. His home was in Waukegan, Ill.

Why Every Citizen Who Can Should Own His Home and Should Build Now

By GEORGE M. WINTHROP, Chicago Bank President

It should be every man's ambition to own his home. In realizing that ambition he will be providing for the future of his family and himself. He will be going far more than merely furnishing a roof over the head of those he loves; he will be laying the foundation upon which his children will build firmness and nobility of character.

A permanent residence in the home you own means the development of a higher type of citizenship for the home owners have pride in the community. They know that the general standard of the community will be raised or lowered by the interest or lack of interest they take in civic affairs.

Apparently, not much is to be gained by waiting for a decline in prices of building materials, for authorities tell us it is impossible for prices to drop to any considerable extent in the face of costs of production which are likely to continue without much change for at least a year or two longer.

Don't Dumb by Faint Praise, but Jump In and Make Ideals Realities

EDITORIAL IN "CARRY ON," Reconstruction Magazine

Efforts have been made to tell every wounded soldier, either in hospital or on the transport bringing him home, or upon his arrival in this country about the plans of his government to cure him as far as is humanly possible, and then retrain him for a new occupation if this is necessary. If possible by the million have been distributed telling these men of their rights first in the hospitals, then under the federal board of vocational education act and finally the provisions made for their compensation.

In spite of these efforts many of these disabled men are still skeptical. Still think that the government plans to cheat them out of their money. But since they have become permanently disabled fighting for this country this country is simply going to throw them on the scrap heap.

These views are due to an insidious propaganda which consciously or unconsciously has been spread around.

A wounded soldier who had just returned from overseas and was in the Government hospital in New York stepped into a drug store while waiting for his medicine.

"Here's your artificial arm?" asked the druggist.

"I haven't got it yet from the government," replied the soldier.

"No, and you never will. That's all bunk about Uncle Sam giving you a new arm; you better go and buy an Easifit arm for yourself."

Three disabled soldiers were talking the other day. One of them said: "I rode downtown with a man today in his auto. This fellow said there was no such red tape in Washington that us disabled guys wouldn't ever get any pensions. He also said we were fools to believe all that bull about being retrained for new jobs. Guess he was right. I'm going to get my discharge and go home and try to find a job before they're all gone."

Every patriotic citizen should stamp out such propaganda just as thoroughly as they did the Hun propaganda during the war. The gigantic task which confronted certain departments of the government may have seemed them up in the beginning, but every agency entrusted with this work is now hitting its stride. Our disabled soldiers will be re-educated, will be furnished with the necessary appliances when they are ready for the same, and will be retrained and placed in profitable employment.

It is your government and you have a part in this great work. Don't dumb by faint praise but jump in and help make these high ideals realities.

We are hereby authorized to announce the name of Joseph Pickering of Clearfield borough, as a candidate for the office of County Commissioner, subject to the rules of the Republican party at the primaries Wednesday, September 17th, 1919.

TO THE VOTERS OF CLEARFIELD COUNTY:

I wish to state that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Commissioner on the Democratic ticket.

I do not expect to be able to make a general canvass of the County, as the duties of the office require practically all my time in Clearfield, and I don't feel that I should neglect my official duties to the extent required to make a general canvass.

I thank all who contributed to my nomination and election four years ago and solicit the vote and hearty cooperation of the Democratic voters at the coming primaries.

AUSTIN HANEY.

We are authorized to announce the name of M. F. Graham, of Clearfield borough, as a candidate for County Commissioner, subject to the action of the Republican primary election. P. O. Address Clearfield. j3-eod-p

BISMARCK'S FRUITS.

The latest biographer of Bismarck, C. Grant Robertson, calls attention to the way in which the great German chancellor was responsible for his own destruction. It was Bismarck's aim to build, not a constitutional government, but an autocracy, says Kansas City Star. In himself he concentrated the whole power of the state. Then came the young William II to the throne, restless and ambitious. The two clashed. Had Bismarck been the parliament-made minister of a constitutional sovereign it would have been William who would have had to give way. For the chancellor had the confidence of the nation. But, as Mr. Robertson says, while a plebiscite would have retained him in office, the nation could not save him. He had made that impossible. As a result of his fall Bismarck denounced as "Byzantinism and caesar worship" this very irresponsible power which it had been his life work to build up. The same ironical fate might be traced in the further development of Bismarck's handwork. The state which he founded on iron and blood came to ruin by attempting to expand his policy.

It is well-known that kings and queens work desperately hard for their salaries. The pursuit of life they have in abundance, but liberty and happiness, requiring much leisure, are not for them. Since the wars, and their activities have become furious, and the few monarchs left are earning overtime. The royal engagement pad will not permit a headache to stand in the way of opening a memorial arch. None of the comfortable subterfuges of private life can excuse a queen. A writer in the Kansas City Star describes Queen Mary's crowded day, from the early morning hours until late at night, and it is evident that she must have little use for a chaise longue, while the king, not overburdened with tasks of state, like a president, nevertheless has not a moment to himself. If our own executive were to attempt to combine social labors with the strenuous schedule he is now undertaking, by aid of Admiral Graydon, there would be fears for his endurance.

The work of the Salvation Army with the army was of such magnitude in the way of results that its members came back from the war zone, practically without criticism on their organization, methods, and with the love, respect and admiration of men of all ranks. They faced all the actual risks of war, in the discharge of their duty, and some paid the supreme sacrifice in ministering to the needs of the soldiers. Their appeal now ought to reach to the heart of the country they served so well, and receive substantial appreciation of their work in the war.

What the whole world needs now is the fishing cure. There is no other balm so effective for strained nerves and worried souls. Fishing is said to encourage falsehood, but we believe that is a slander invented by would-be humorists, who never fish except for snipe jokes. On the contrary, it encourages nearly all the virtues. It's difficult to conceive of a true fisherman who is not a philosopher and a good citizen. Let's halt the world's business and go fishing. It is a sure cure for that tired, worried feeling.

Possibly the allies may find that they have unwittingly done Germany a favor by abolishing it from the old and gloomy burdens of militarism, while aiming to cripple it. At any rate, heavy armaments in France and England will put them at a disadvantage with German industry to that extent.

It is not surprising that England lays claim to a number of the German ships seized by the United States. When everything is settled, it will be found that if England has not come out of the big end of the horn it will not be for lack of effort on her part.

America has spent $30,000,000 in relief work and sent 270,000 tons of food to starving Europe. And it has come out of the war asking no spoils. That is a record to be proud of we are handing down to posterity.

The governor of New York has signed the law repealing the statute which makes attempted suicide a punishable offense. In one state, at least, a man can no longer be jailed for falling to kill himself.

Whisky may not be manufactured in the United States, but the war developed several new and potent kinds of gas that should bring all the old-time reactions.

Some brave talking youths would become aviators if they weren't afraid of missing something on the street corner.

Be Pretty! Turn Gray Hair Dark

Try Grandmother's old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this thru your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

FOR BETTER ROADS

CHANGE IDEAS ON HIGHWAYS

Non-Motoring Public No Longer Regards Good Roads as Speedways for Fortunate Neighbors.

The public's conception of "good roads" has undergone a radical change in the last two years.

Prior to the entry of the United States into the world war, the non-motoring American public, more often than not, thought good roads were advocated chiefly for the benefit of their more fortunate neighbors who owned and drove their own motor cars, writes E. A. Williams, Jr., president of a large motor truck company. They were inclined to regard good roads laws as class legislation and were unwilling for the most part to lend either financial or moral support to the construction and upkeep of something from which they derived no direct benefits so far as they could see.

The war merely hastened what leaders of the industry had foreseen for several years; it furnished the setting and the conditions which enabled the truck to establish itself as a factor in the economic life of the country.

The non-motoring public no longer looks upon good roads as "speedways" for the motoring "aristocracy." It has come to realize that motor trucks are essential as transportation factors, and that good roads are necessary to the efficient operation of trucks. Its vision has been broadened; it sees the advantages and benefits which accrue from a combination of these factors—benefits which have a direct bearing upon the economic conditions of the community.

It sees the farm brought, one might say, to the very table of the consumer; it sees an ultimate decrease in food prices; and, those who pause to consider the matter further, see the ever expanding range of possibilities of the truck and its ally, good roads.

With the universal recognition and adoption of the motor truck the public's conception of how roads should be built also has undergone a change. Heretofore there has been a vast difference between the average man's idea of good roads and that of the experienced engineer. The average man was content to build for the present; the engineer, as a result of past and not altogether satisfactory experience, ence, knows and has known the importance of building for the future as well as the present.

The first thing a railroad does after obtaining a right-of-way, as everyone knows, is to build a roadbed and lay tracks. That roadbed is put in to stay. The track, which corresponds to the surface of the highway, is built of the most substantial and practical material to be had.

The railroad officials, however, do not expect this roadbed and track to last forever without attention. Long ago they learned that the only way to assure safety and durability is to anticipate depreciation and make constant repairs.

That is just what we are coming to in road building. For years it has been customary for county engineers to direct such operations but for the most part their work has been hampered by lack of funds, and inadequate force or by limited legislation and more or less red tape. There are some states in which farmers are still working out their road tax by the day, hauling gravel or stone in a more or less haphazard fashion for the construction of roads; upon their efforts and those of a limited force of hired workers depends the maintenance of the community's highways.

MR. TITUS WAD SURE IS ONE FRUGAL GUY

SOME OLDTIMER MAY TRIM DEMPSEY YET

By H. C. HAMILTON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 25.—It was clearly demonstrated a short time ago in a ring at Toledo, Ohio, that "youth must be served," but let's see if it really must.

Athletics, as a rule, in every line of effort, are about the same, so far as supremacy of youth or age is concerned. We find ball players passing out of the limelight at an age that strikes a fairly good average at 30 years; fighters drop hard after they have gone by that mark; runners, pole vaulters, football players—practically all who strive to amuse the public by athletic prowess, wither away as age creeps on them.

But there are exceptions to the rule. There are the Giants, for instance. Aged, decrepit, they have been called, yet the men led by John J. McGraw have set the pace for the National league practically all the season. There isn't a regular infielder on the club under 30. The pitching staff is composed of veterans for the most part. George Burns and Benny Kauff have far too many years over their heads to be placed in the chicken class. The youngsters of the club are the chaps who are holding down bench positions, rather than the aged ones.

This club, it has been promised by many an expert, will crack in the dog days. But will it? It certainly is traveling at a fine clip now and shows small signs of cracking.

Then we have Dick Remer. If you never saw Dick Remer do a walking race you have missed a great sight. Dick has been winning walks for so long he can do it with his eyes shut and lead in his shoes. He walks around the youngsters. There isn't a man in the nation who can approach his form and speed when he is right. George Goulding is the only man on the track he has any great respect for, and Goulding has been making walking records for a good many years himself.

And then there is Jack Britton, who was defeated for the welterweight championship by Ted Lewis, only to come back and knock out Lewis. Britton is past 35 and is a better battler now than at any time in his career.

Pop Geers, who is so old he has quit counting, is still driving winning races on Grand Circuit tracks.

Doc Roller, who was considerable shucks as a wrestler before most of us knew what a rattle was, is still pinning shoulders to mats.

Youth will be served, of course, in most ventures, but age also has its flings in many cases, and don't forget it.

TAFT'S MUCH DISCUSSED LETTERS TO HAYES ON THE LEAGUE PROBLEM

Six reservations to the league of nations suggested by William Howard Taft in a letter to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, which it is believed will enable many members of the Republican opposition in the Senate to support the covenant, were made public today.

Mr. Taft said the reservations he suggested should make clear all the disputed points and enable the United States to obtain the "inestimable benefits" of the league of nations.

The existing situation relative to the league of nations and the peace treaty in the senate is due, Mr. Taft said, to the "very serious mistakes of policy committed by President Wilson. The partisan character of his administration during the war, together with his appeal to his countrymen to elect a Democratic Congress in November, 1918, created a condition of personal and political antagonism toward him among Republican leaders, which is shared by a majority of the American people."

Mr. Taft's Letters to Hays

The letters, both dated Pointe-a-Pic, Quebec, July 2, follow:

"My dear Mr. Hays--In what I said yesterday I did not go over the various interpretations and reservations, because I thought that in our previous correspondence they were sufficiently explained. I think it wise, now that I have formulated them, after a good deal of thought, to take up my reasons in detail for suggesting them.

"Speaking generally, I wish to emphasize my conviction that the United States Senate might well ratify the present treaty, without any reservations or interpretations. I am confident that the actual operation of the treaty after ratification would bring about exactly the same result as that which would be attained by the acceptance of these interpretations and reservations, but it seems to me to be the part of statesmen to recognize the exigencies, personal, partisan and political, of a situation in seeking to achieve real progress and reform.

"The situation which confronts us now in reference to the ratification of the treaty is one created by very serious mistakes of policy committed by Mr. Wilson. The partisan character of his administration during the war, together with his appeal to his countrymen to elect a Democratic Congress in November, 1918, created a condition of personal and political antagonism toward him among Republican leaders, which was shared by a majority of the American people. This was shown in the results of the election. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Wilson persisted in continuing the same partisan exclusion of Republicans in dealing with the highly important matter of settling the results of the war.

Commission Unexperienced

"He selected a commission, in which the Republicans had no representation and in which there were no prominent Americans of any real experience and leadership of public opinion. With such a commission, his unusual course in going abroad himself, as President, greatly emphasized the personal element in the framing of the treaty and intensified the general tendency to oppose anything that he might bring home, because of his apparent wish to dictate the policy of the world and to monopolize the credit for it.

"I feel that some of the defects of the league of nations are due to him. I am confident that he prevented the adoption of the plan of the league to enforce peace in respect to an international court and the settlement of justiciable questions. This was, as I am advised, in the English plan, but was studiously omitted from the very satisfactory American plan. His prejudice against courts is well known. Article X, I think is due to him primarily, because it is merely the embodiment of the last of his fourteen points. While it came from his suggestion, however, it suited the demand of the French, so far as it went, and I believe it to be now the heart of the league in tending to unite the forces of the world in police duty to suppress wars of conquest.

"BAYER CROSS" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Always buy an unbroken Bayer package which contains proper directions to safely relieve Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Colds and pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents at drug stores--larger packages also. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer.

"The power of amendment, contained within the terms of the league, offers full opportunity to remedy the defects of the league with reference to the international court and other respects. The great point which supporters of the league of nations now should seek is the establishment of the basis upon which, through amendment, the league can be perfected. It is absolutely necessary to retain Article X in order to stabilize the world. The fluid condition of the region of the war threatens the stability of the world, and it needs the united forces of the world to restore a normal condition of self-maintenance. In my judgment, therefore, it would be most unfortunate if the cautionary influence of Article X may not be retained in the crucial decade through which the world is to pass.

Hostility Endangers Ratification

"The attitude of hostility toward the President has aroused criticism and opposition which might have been avoided had he taken with him such a man as Mr. Root and two representatives of the foreign relations committee in the Senate. The criticism thus aroused has stirred the conscience of a number of Republican senators and has endangered the ratification of the league by two-thirds of the Senate.

"Mr. Wilson's influence with his Democratic supporters in the Senate will secure perhaps forty-five votes. Nineteen Republican votes are needed, and the question is how they can be secured. I don't think they can be secured except by relieving their consciences through reassuring interpretations of the league of such a character that they are likely to be accepted without further negotiation and conference and delay by the other nations who dictated the peace. After consideration of the arguments made on the subject, I have formulated these interpretations and reservations, with the hope that they will suggest a basis of agreement between the Democrats and sufficient Republicans to ratify the treaty and secure us the inestimable benefit of a league of nations which will be the foundation for growth and development into a new era in our international relations.

"The attempt of such men as Senator Borah, Senator Johnson, Senator Sherman and others to defeat the treaty and the deliberate exaggeration of the Shantung feature of the treaty do not, I think, indicate the attitude of the majority of the Republican party in the Senate, and I do not think that any attention should be paid to the suggestion that the treaty be amended in its provisions with reference to the re-arrangement of the map of the region of the war.

"To repeat I am strongly in favor of ratifying the treaty as it is. Were I in the Senate, I would not hesitate to vote for it, but the situation may require concession to secure ratification, and I suggest what I have already sent to you, a copy of which I enclose, as something that will secure a useful league of nations, which may be improved and which at the same time may satisfy the genuine objections of the Republican friends of the league in the Senate.

Interpretations Suggested

"Coming now to specify interpretations, it seems to me that the first achieves all that the draftsmen of the withdrawal clause intended, and as thus interpreted relieves that clause from a possible construction by which the actual withdrawal on two years' notice might be greatly hindered through the claims of the other members of the league.

"The second interpretation has to do with the presence in the league, as members, of self-governing dominions of colonies of a home government, also a member. Certainly in a small body like that of the council, it would be unfair to have a home government represented and also one of its dominions or colonies, and I cannot think it was the intention of the framers of the covenant that this might happen. Yet I am bound to say that such a result is not excluded by the present language of the covenant in Article X and Article IV; nor does the language of Article XV necessarily exclude from the tribunal to recommend a settlement of a dispute, a home government where one of its dominions or colonies is a party, nor does it necessarily exclude a dominion or colony from such tribunal where the home government may be a party; yet

"I have no doubt that both of these exclusions were intended by the framers of the covenant, nor is there any express description of the function to be performed by the council or the assembly under Article XV, so as to require that it should act judicially and according to international law or equity and justice. I have no doubt that it was intended that the language of the preamble should characterize the function of the duties of the council or assembly under Article XV. And therefore, that the language I have introduced in the second interpretation

tion is merely giving expression to that which ought to be inferred as the intention of the framers of the covenant. I may say that it supplies that which Mr. Root forcibly represented as a defect of the covenant.

Article X Defined

"The third interpretation is an exact legal construction of the effect of Article X, and I do not see how any of the signatory powers can object to it. The conclusions in respect to the function of Congress under this article is the necessary result of the distribution of power under our constitution to which none of the associate members of the league can object.

The fourth interpretation is a mere statement of international law and the proper construction of the seventh paragraph of Article XV, which is only inserted to satisfy criticism of that paragraph, based on the unfounded assumption that some tribunal of the league will be found which will declare issues in respect to immigration or the tariff to be something other than a question of domestic policy. It, as all authorities show, immigration and tariff unaffected by treaties are purely domestic questions, then it cannot injure the league to say that which is undoubtedly a maxim of international law and remove the concern of those who suspect other nations of being in constant and unprin-

A Sense of Flying

Breezing along in an Atlantic-fed motor, one is impressed with the marked similarity to the sensation of mechanical flight.

For it seems the wheels must leave the road and carry you Up There on the highway of Hawker and Alcock and Read.

That's because Atlantic Gasoline is packed-to-the-doors with power and push that sweep everything before them. Power that will not be denied. Power that seeks release, like a beast ensnared.

Atlantic Gasoline is the same in all seasons. It is no fair-weather fuel, merely. Once your carburetor is adjusted for the season, you need not change it--IF you use Atlantic Gasoline, and nothing else.

Ask for Atlantic by name. Yes, it does make a difference. A BIG difference.

FAIT'S MUCH DISCUSSED LETTERS TO HAYES ON THE LEAGUE PROBLEM

cipled conspiracy against the interests of the United States. We may deplore this attitude of mind, but where it costs nothing in the effectiveness of the league we may well insert a provision to remove the fears it prompts. "The fifth interpretation defines the Monroe Doctrine. As the expression 'Monroe Doctrine' is used in Article XXI, and as the United States is the author of the doctrine and has maintained it for ninety-six years, it is fairly within the limit of an interpretation for it to state what the doctrine has been made to be in the history of its development to the present day. As the time has come for its world recognition, the time has also come for its definition, and I believe the language used correctly states what we have a right to claim it to be and all that we have the right to claim it to be.

"These interpretations, it seems to me reasonably answer all the reasonable or sincere criticisms made against the league except as they are met by the single reservation as to Article X, which is suggested at the close. Mr. Root, in his letter to you, proposed that the operation of Article X be limited to five years when the settlements of the war should be examined, with the view to the further operation of the article after a resettlement. Influenced by some direct information that I have as to the attitude of France in respect to Article 10, I am confident that the period of five years is not long enough for this stabilization and does not offer the security which France eagerly seeks under the league or by supplemental treaty. I think, therefore, that the cautious influence of the league would be greatly strengthened by lengthening this period from five to ten years. It seems to me that ought to be done by the formal exercise of the right to withdraw as a member of the league after ten years by giving notice to that effect.

"The nations of the league can be sure that should the league work well, the United States will withdraw the notice and continue to bear its part of the world's burden in securing the benefits of the league, if those benefits are apparent after ten years' trial. The provision, however, may tend to satisfy doubters in respect to the league by requiring for its extension beyond ten years the affirmative action of the President and two-thirds of the Senate in favor of such extension after the trial of a decade. Meantime, should the failure of the league be apparent before the expiration of the ten years, the withdrawal clause gives us full opportunity to end our relation to the league by a two years' notice.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE STANDING

The City Team defeated the Third Ward teamers in a twilight league game last evening by a score of 7 to 1. Following is the league standing to date:

City Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
H. W. R. Co. Team	7	3	.700
N. Y. C. Team	6	3	.667
Third Ward Team	5	4	.555
Y. M. C. A.	0	11	.000

The percentage table has been hermetically sealed to prevent the "Y" team from falling out the bottom.

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

HAROLD W. ROBERTS,
Corporal, Company A, 342nd Battalion, Tank Corps.

For deliberately going to his death to save a companion in the Montrebeau woods, France, October 4, 1918, Corp. Roberts was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Corp. Roberts, a tank driver, was moving his tank into a clump of bushes to afford protection to another tank which had been disabled. The tank slid into a shell hole, ten feet deep, filled with water, and was immediately submerged. Knowing that only one of the two men in the tank could escape, Corp. Roberts said to the gunner, "Well, only one of us can get out, and out you go," whereupon he pushed his companion through the back door of the tank and was himself drowned. Corp. Roberts' home address was 5 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

A TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF EMMA McDOWELL

By the standard of the Nazarine a life is great when it is beautiful in that every line of character holds proportion, gives symmetry, suggests righteousness, inspires broad sympathies and impels generous services.

By this standard Emma McDowell's life was both great and beautiful. Generously endowed by nature she responded readily to the influences of righteousness until her thoughts were bound into a thousand cables that drew her sympathies, her devotion, and her service to the weak and woe of almost humanity itself, binding the joys and sorrows, especially of the young, to her personal interest until it moulded her every thought and act into a worthy service.

In her chosen work as teacher she lent an inspiration to pupils that could only result from broad sympathies, untiring devotion and complete self-sacrifice. Her influences in this sphere time will measure. When many of the young lives meet the struggle of existence, surrounded with its cares and temptations, they will bless the life of this teacher for the joy and sunshine, the ideas and ideals that was woven into their being as they sat under her guidance and instruction.

Arduous as was her school duties, and limited as was her strength at times, she was always doing good by stealth; seeking whom she might assist by encouragement, by advice or by modest material aid, contributing her best to the cause she recognized as the mission of man, the service of the Master.

There are those whose memory may be perpetuated by towering shafts or stately mausoleums, by the eulogies of sages or the songs of bards but here was a life that will live by its Christian love and kindness as it will be reflected by those who came under its influence.

Emma McDowell's life was beautiful.

THE FRENCHVILLE PICNIC

The famous Frenchville picnic which is scheduled for Wednesday, August 28th, this year, will be the forty-first annual gathering at this popular point. The Frenchville picnic is the oldest and best known picnic in the county and appears to gain favor with age. We know whereof we speak, too, because we have just missed two of these picnics in the last 28 years, and expect to go this year "if the Lord is willing" and the creek don't raise."

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet. A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

The Curwensville-Morrisdale ball game at Athletic Park yesterday afternoon was a lulu and the spectators did not regret paying the price of admission, for they witnessed a game of real baseball. Both sides entered the contest with a determination of winning and played ball according to Hoyle. During the first half of the game the Morrisdale boys had the advantage in run getting, but Kelly's Elks took a fresh hold on themselves and sort of stampeded their opponents and started in to add some marks on the score card. They kept in mind the lambasting they received at the hands of Blaine City on Tuesday, and that was the main incentive that made them play real ball, finally winning the game by a score of 9 to 8.

Prof. B. Eduard Richards, violinist and teacher, has just returned from New York City where he has been spending some months adopting the Belgian system for violin, under the great master, teacher and pedagogue, Ovide Musin. Mr. Richards will accept a few pupils for instruction at home, 413 Grampian Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Al McNaul and two daughters, Wava and Verrill, are spending a couple of weeks in Atlantic City and Cape May.

Miss Ruth LaPorte returned last evening from Pittsburgh where she spent the past two weeks with friends.

Willard McNaul, of Pittsburgh, is home for a short vacation.

Miss Ruth Robinson entertained at the M. E. church last evening, the teachers of the primary department of the M. E. Sunday School.

Postmaster G. F. Kettleberger received one day this week about a thousand pasteboard saving banks from the department which will be distributed among the kids and other folks. The object is to induce those who receive a bank to save their pennies until the amount reaches a stipulated sum and then purchase a Thrift Stamp. "A penny saved is a penny earned," is one of the admonitions on the bank, while another one reads, "It's fun to turn your pennies into Thrift Stamps and know that you are helping Uncle 'Sara.' In January 1924 you receive $5.00 for every war saving stamp. Start right in now to save."

Chas. Sweney has been going to and from his work at the Bickford office, carrying along a "game leg," that member being injured while Mr. Sweney was cranking his auto.

Taking advantage of the fine weather and good roads yesterday, a number of Curwensville people motored to Altoona and attended Methodist Day.

Miss Gladys Draucker, who has been spending several weeks with relatives in this place, left for her home in Lock Haven today. She is the youngest daughter of Jack L. Draucker, who for a number of years was manager of the Dyer stores.

The repair work on the Bloom bridge is progressing rapidly and will soon be completed in full.

Night-Blooming Party Frocks

If you would forget that there is anything in the world but joy, spend a little time looking at the party frocks in which the summer girl will dance some hours away. If these dance frocks flourished in the daytime, bees and butterflies might pursue them, for they curiously borrow from flowers their color and piquancy and sunshine glimmers in their brocades and embroideries. Evening gowns indulge in sumptuous materials. In gold and silver tissue, in rich embroideries and twinkling sequins and all kinds of shimmering things—including the new shot taffetas. Finally they turn to tulle and laces or sheer crepe. A world of fine and fragile fabrics belongs to them.
The two pretty party frocks shown here are of the simpler designs, one of them in white and the other in black with embroidery and brocade sash in metal and colored brocade. The white frock has a slim underslip of embroidered satin, draped about the ankles and full draperies of fine net ending in points about the bottom, hang over it. A vestee of twinkling sequins fills the V-shaped opening of the bodice—the net makes a filmy drape that falls from the shoulder. For a lovely finishing touch a narrow ribbon hangs in loops and ends from the girdle.
Black georgette over a satin slip serves for the dignified gown at the left of the picture. Its construction is so simple that the picture tells about all that can be told. It has a very plain bodice with round neck, bound with brocade. The skirt is gathered to this and hangs straight with an overhanging panel at the front that is embroidered near the bottom. The same embroidery appears at the sides below the hipline. A very gorgeous sash of heavy brocaded ribbon makes the wide girdle with one long hanging end.

Substitute for Fur.
The reported decision of clothing manufacturers, particularly specialty houses, of going more into leather-lined or convertible overcoats for next fall and winter finds an echo in the women's wear trade. According to a dress goods representative the suggestion that leather be substituted in some cases for fur trimmings has met with quite a little response. The price consideration is not one that holds the important place for the change, even though there is a difference in favor of the use of leather, but the novelty of leather trimmings is expected to be a big factor.
